(Special to The Herald.)

Park City, Sept. 2.—On a muddy field, so slippery that fast ball playing was impossible for either team. Eureka, with Graves in the box, took Park City into camp today by a score of 12 to 5. The visitors had on their batting clothes, every member of the team getting a hit or more, with the exception of Captain Lumley. Park City was obliged to use three pitchers, and not until Osborne went into the box was the hit-getting stopped on the part of Eureka. Betzel went in at the start off for Park City, but he discovered that to pitch successfully a man must practice, and he retired in the second after five were secured off his delivery. Noah took his place, and while he did a little better, he was unable to stop the hit and run getting. Osborne took the slab in the seventh, and four scattered hits was the best the visitors could do off him.

The local team was generally off and seemed to lack that ginger which they have had since the season began. Into effect. Aside from playing their usual careful hitting game, the visitors made a new record, striking a home run, which was a great feat for the time was occupied by their complaints. From a spectacular point of view, the game was of the varied sort. Some sensational work was done by both teams, and at one time the score stood 12 to 1. The only noticeable play of the game occurred in the seventh, when Patterson made an error, allowing Newell's hit to third, and by a wonderful throw he hit the runner at first. The ball was hit so hard and so fast that the most of the spectators did not see the play.

The two teams met again tomorrow, and Rush and Osborne will be the opposing pitchers.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

Bicycle Races Described From Viewpoint of Lay Spectator in Grand Stand.

A Salt Lake woman who is a regular patron of the bicycle races was expressing her opinion of the races on Friday evening. She was requested to write an account of the meet as seen by the ordinary woman spectator in the grand stand. Her account is herewith given.

We all went to the bicycle races Friday evening, or rather late in the afternoon. There was a great crowd, everybody was there. The management had contrived a very inconvenient way of getting to the arena, but as the Missouri would say, it's a damned handy way to get in at.

Previous to the main event, there appeared several fellows in striped suits who executed what they considered several fine stunts. They rode around with out any particular object in view. The feat looked easy, I don't think.

The seats were all occupied with what looked to us like rather an intelligent audience—that is a few of them did.

About 8 p. m. the moon appeared, and in a few yards of moonshine and a sweet smile, the man (in the latter) took a momentary view of the situation and retired in favor of the racing crowd. A little later the judges arrived, and a score of them were real judges, too, although they didn't look it. Some of them were identified by the judges as being high officials in business and state. About an hour too late, Held's band put in an appearance, and played for an overture a funeral march composed by Constanza O'Donnell. These few preliminaries led up to the event we all had our money on and consequently were very anxious about. Well, I won my ten, so I am fixed for some time.

Kramer, of course, was received with rounds of applause, mainly, I suspect, because he is the better looking man of the two. Some of the directors held while others avowed that the money belonged to Kramer.

There was considerable excitement after this race and for some time we feared a riot, but with the appearance of an American party policeman the crowd broke up and went home, or rather came up town and had drinks on the strength of it.

AMERICANS AND GERMANS MAY MIX

Yacht Race Promoted by Boston and the Kaiser for This Reason.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 2.—To promote good feeling between the German and American people, to increase the interest in the international racing and to enable yachtsmen of moderate means in the sport are the objects which the Eastern Yacht club of Boston and the German Emperor hope to obtain by the series of races which will begin tomorrow in Massachusetts bay between six small yachts representing the two countries.

The incentive is a massive silver bowl for which President Roosevelt stands as sponsor and which is offered by the Eastern Yacht club. Next year it is believed the Emperor William will be the donor of the trophy when the races are sailed at Kiel. The German aspirants, or challengers, are the Ank, owned by Charles Gustav Stinnes of Muehlheim, representing the Imperial Yacht club of Kiel; the Tilly, owned by Messrs. Doltman and Krogmann of Hamburg; and the Vinn, owned by the North German Racing union, and the Wannee, representing the Wannee Sailing club and owned by that organization.

American Defenders.

The American seekers for, or as they are regarded here, the defenders of the trophy, are the Ank, owned by Charles Francis Adams of the Quincy Yacht club; the Caramba, owned by C. H. Foster of the Eastern Yacht club, and the Vinn, owned by Commodore Trener Liverpool, of the American club of New York. All six yachts are the pick of two big fleets on either side of the ocean.

The races will be sailed off Halfway Rock, the northern tip of Massachusetts bay. At least five races will be sailed and the Roosevelt cup will go to the owner of the yacht who first wins three races or the fifth race of the series.

The event is the first match between yachtsmen of this country and any country in continental Europe and as such marks a new era in the sport. In principle it is different from any other match ever held in one vital respect, namely: The competing boats are built and the races sailed under the rules of the visiting club.

Advantage for Visitors.

This gives the visitors an advantage that will go a long way toward compensating for any handicap that they may suffer from racing on strange waters in a strange country. Again the type of boats is a familiar one in Germany, but an entirely new one to the American designers and the outcome will be watched with great interest to see whether the Yankee designer and builder with out previous trial has turned out a boat which is faster than his German competitor.

The restrictions are that the yachts must be built with the total length of the water line, beam and draught not over 25 feet, the sail area not over 550 square feet and the weight of the boats more than 4,000 pounds. The American yachts average 25 feet over all and 20.50 feet on the water line. The German yachts average 22 feet over all and 20.50 feet on the water line.

The courses will be alternately triangular or windward and leeward.
